Murphy was in the custody of the police Friday night, after the shooting. They were unable to get anything from him except that he had been in the meeting room of the union, over the salloon, where the fight took place. They finally had Burke confront him in the room of Capt, Casey of the Third Precinct.

"When you say I had anything to do with the shooting of Conroy," said Murphy, "you lie and you know it. I'm just as sorry for his being shot as you are. When I have occasion to do a man I am able to do it myself. I don't need to send to New York to get thugs to help me."
